Using Business Library Resources During Your Internship

Review the Proper Use of GBL Subscription Databases During Your Internship

- It is illegal to use Emory library databases for your internship.

- Emory database licensing agreements allow student usage for course, career preparation and personal enrichment.

Ask a Business Librarian for Help

- Your Business Librarians are here all summer! Email us at gbsaskalibrarian@emory.edu
- For internship projects, we can recommend search strategies and alternatives to our subscription databases (trade or government organizations; advanced Google strategies, etc.)
- If your company has their own subscription to a research database (this is pretty common!), we're happy to recommend search strategies and tips for using it.

Leverage your MP Business Intelligence Skills

- Use advanced Google search strategies and think about where information lives.

Always Cite Your Sources

- Comply with your company's licensing terms for subscription databases
- Don't plagiarize! Remember your ethical and legal copyright obligations; cite all sources you use in your presentations and reports: <http://business.library.emory.edu/documents/faq-handouts/chicago-citation-guide.pdf>

You CAN Use Library Databases for Your Personal Enrichment!

- Need to enhance your Excel skills? Learn more about Table or GoogleAdwords? Lynda.com offers video training ranging from 5 minutes to 5 hours.
- Keep up with the best business ideas and thoughts: Business Book Summaries and Get Abstract contain audio and PDF book summaries.
- Overdrive Business Audiobooks include 100+ business books available to listen to on the go.
- Stay current on your business news: Read the WSJ.com, FT.com and your local city's Business Chronicle.

Download These Apps

If they're not on your phone or tablet yet, download them before you leave for the summer!
